

Objective

Create as many collections as you can before the end of the twentieth century.

At the end of the twentieth century, complete collections are worth double credits, whereas individual books are worth only their face value.

It does not matter how diverse your collections are: you can have multiple specialty collections, for example, or all country collections. All that matters is the number of collections you've completed.

Collection options include:

- National Canon: 6 books from one country
- Most Valuable Books: 4 most valuable books
- Specialty: 6 books within one genre.
